IMPOSTANT IF TRUE .- A correspondent of the Scientific American says:

If you have a boat that leaks badly, and it is in a strong current, or if you towing it up stream, all you have to do to keep it dry is this: Bore a hole through the bottom and insert a piece or iron, balf round, through the hole. Is ting it extend a few inches below the tottom of the boat, and all the water will can out without any labor. I think a his at sea could be kept affont if you could keep her going four miles Tin Ware, Pumps, etc. etc.
